DIPHTHERIA

In Epidemic Form Prevalent Throughout State

SOME CASES IN GARRARD

Board of Health Issues Proclamation

Owing to the existence of diphtheria throughout the state the State Board of Health has issued a proclamation calling attention to this treacherous disease, which should be a warning to the parents, teachers and physicians of the county.

Several cases of diphtheria have been reported in this county and the proclamation, which is given in full below, should be heeded and every effort made to conform to the laws of the State Board of Health upon this very important matter.

The proclamation reads: "Acting under the responsibility and authority imposed upon it by law, the State Board of Health of Kentucky hereby calls the attention of the fathers and mothers and school authorities in the State to the existence of diphtheria in epidemic form in many sections of the State. Repeated warnings that this would occur have not been heeded. Parents are urged to promptly isolate all children with sore throats until seen by their family physicians; teachers are requested to send home from school all children having sore throats, with a note to the parents urging that they be immediately seen by their family physician; physicians are requested to have on hand an adequate supply of antitoxin and to administer at least 10,000 units to each case seen as soon as possible. Antitoxin may be secured at reduced wholesale prices from this Board or from the depots established in each county in the State. County Boards of Health are requested to arrange for an adequate supply of antitoxin for use with the indigent at the expense of each county.

Parents with children are urged to confer with their family physicians and have their children tested, and, if necessary, immunized against diphtheria so as to avoid this danger. There were 652 children who died in 1921 with this disease. These deaths were wholly unnecessary and ought not to have occurred and would not if proper attention had been paid to the cases. The law requires that no child be released from quarantine until its throat has been found free from germs by a recognized laboratory. Most of these deaths were due to violation of this law and the courts of the State are requested to enforce it.

Given under our hands and the seal of the Board at Louisville this 12th day of October, 1922."

L. S. McMurtry, President.
A. T. McCormack, Secretary.

Big Executor's Sale

Next Thursday, October 26th.

On the above date beginning at 10 A. M. W. T. King, Sr. and Jr., as executors of Howard King, will sell at auction for the high dollar 612 acres of land in Garrard county, three miles from Bryantsville, on the Dixie Highway. This property will be subdivided. It is well improved and most of it is in grass. Has 100 acres of rich bottom land. An ideal stock farm. On the same day they will also sell all the personal property of the late Howard King, consisting of mules, horses, cattle, hogs, sheep, farming implements, crops, household goods, etc. Dinner on the ground. Easy terms. Read the ad elsewhere in this issue and be sure and attend this sale.

To Whom it

May Concern

This is to certify that Adjutant John Osborne is authorized to solicit funds for the general work of the Salvation Army in Western Ohio, and the State of Kentucky.

Signed—Herbert Roberts, Brigadier.

Division Commander.

The above is a copy of the endorsement of Adj. Osborne, who is in Lancaster now soliciting funds for this great and worthy cause. Mr. Osborne will be in our midst for some few days and will call on every citizen, and will deeply appreciate whatever you may see fit to give him. He will issue you a receipt for your donations. The Salvation Army will always be found to have a good name by our ex-service men for the valuable assistance rendered them during the dark days of '17 and '18 and especially those who served in the A. E. F.

BOND ISSUE

Voted in Garrard County Cannot be Used Except for Federal Highway

Court of Appeals Affirms Lower Court

The Court of Appeals last Friday affirmed the decision of the Garrard Circuit Court, declaring that bond issues cannot be turned to uses other than those for which they are voted, in the case brought to join the Garrard County Fiscal Court from selling bonds and using the proceeds for general road purposes.

The voters of Garrard county passed a bond issue in March, 1920, of $122,000, for the construction of a federal highway from the Madison county line at Paint Lick to run along the Richmond road to the city limits of Lancaster and from the city limits of Lancaster over the Lexington road to the Boyle county line at Dix river. The federal highway was then abandoned and the Fiscal Court sought to use the bonds to improve the other roads of the county. To this procedure some of the taxpayers objected and the Circuit Court judge granted an injunction to prevent the selling of the bonds.

The opinion affirming the judgment of the Garrard Circuit Court was written by Justice Ernest Clarke.

Clark County High Easy for Lancaster

The Clark County High School football eleven journeyed to this city Thursday afternoon just to return to the land of their native birth defeated by the score of 33 to 12. Their first touchdown came in the first one minute of play when their sturdy little half back, who played the game for the visitors intercepted one of Capt. Cox's forward passes and crossed the line for a marker, they failed to kick the goal. The next marker was given to the local lads, who by line plunges and end runs carried the pigskin over the line and Cox kicked the goal. They immediately turned and scored another one and kicked the goal, while the Clark County lads got away on a nice forward pass, and made their second and last touchdown during the contest and again they failed to kick the goal, the half ending just at this time.

The local lads have witnessed several touch contests during their five straight victories this season and the many hundred spectators have seen some real thrills pulled during their many victories, however, it is safe to say that never before have the spectators or the team witnessed a game that was filled with more thrills than this one. During the last half Captain Cox and his men were out of the class with the Clark County boys. Their goal was never threatened and markers were made at will, either by line plunges that looked like end runs or passes or whatever the locals cared to pull. They deliberately played the boys from Clark county off their feet during this half. One beautiful play that was pulled was when Captain Cox returned a punt from the 30 yard line for a marker. The interference that his team mates gave him was perfect.

We would like to mention all of the players but owing to the fact that they all played a wonderful game and from the lack of space, we cannot in this issue.

The local lads have now a new Coach in the person of Mr. Geo. Heber, of State and they have one of the best coaches to be found in the State. We dare predict that they will bring to Lancaster the State Championship for which they are strong contenders.

Off for Madison Hi

The L. H. S. foot ball team will leave here tomorrow, (Friday) at ten o'clock by Reo bus line for Richmond, where Coach Heber will line up his charges against the strong eleven representing Madison Hi.

Let's all go with them and add still another victory to our long string.

Rare Bargains

At R. H. Batson's

Mr. R. H. Batson, who has always believed in a liberal use of printer's ink, especially when he is offering some choice bargains, has contracted for quite a lot of space to be used in the next few weeks and is offering in this issue some rare bargains that should appeal to anyone needing anything in his line. Just look over his advertisement and give him a call and you will soon be convinced that he means just what he says.

NINTH DISTRICT

Christian Endeavor to Meet Here Saturday and Sunday

What promises to be one of the best district meetings ever held in the state and possibly equally a state convention, will be the convention of the Ninth District Christian Endeavorers, which will convene in Lancaster, at the Christian church next Saturday morning and lasting through Sunday evening.

An interesting and instructive program has been arranged by the district president, Clinton Hastin, of this city, and many noted speakers from over the state will be heard during the meeting. It is rare indeed to secure the services of such men as appear on the program, among them being, Mr. William Klingman, of Nashville, who will lead the song services; Hon. Howard E. Taylor, of Berea College; Major Noel Gaines, of Frankfort; Dr. M. A. Hart, Danville, and Rev. Vernon Stauffer, Dean of the Kentucky College of the Bible, Lexington.

The program in full is printed in this issue of the Record.

Paint Lick Loses

To Louisville Nine

A good delegation from Lancaster saw Paint Lick's splendid baseball team defeated by the Louisville Colonels last Friday afternoon. A crowd estimated at four hundred enjoyed the game, although the result was not at all to its liking. Clel Tatum pitched for Paint Lick, while our popular townsman, Dick Luckey, caught behind the bag, but little could be accomplished with the Louisville sluggers. Our boys were simply outclassed and the Colonels hit the ball safely whenever they chose to.

The result of the Paint Lick-Colonel game was never in doubt from the start. The visitors gathered three runs in the first inning and came back in the second with two more. They ended their scoring in the fifth when they counted four times. The score:

Louisville 3 2 0 0 4 0 0 0—3
Paint Lick 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 1—2

Batteries: Deberry and Schmidt; Tatum and Luckey.

New Coach For L. H. S. Foot Ball Team

Mr. George Heber, a former foot ball star from the University of Kentucky at Lexington, arrived in Lancaster Monday afternoon and has taken full charge of the local green and white foot ball warriors.

The local eleven led this year by Captain Cox is considered one of the best teams in Central Kentucky and with such a prospective team as this the many admirers of the green and white jerseyed men started a petition of all business men who are interested to donate whatever they care too in order to secure the services of Coach Heber for the remainder of the season. The local eleven have played and won five games this season, and under the leadership of Coach Heber and Mr. J. M. McRoberts, who still remains as athletic Director will without a doubt give us a State Championship Eleven.

Big Auction Sale

Of O. M. Moreland Farm

The Record has just finished printing some sale bills for R. G. Fox, the Real Estate Agent of Danville, who will sell on Wednesday, Oct. 25th, 1922, 60+ acres of the best land to be found in old Garrard. This land has one mile West of Bryantsville and is known as the Jas. H. Leavell Farm. Mr. Fox, who is making one of the best real estate men, will have on the block Capt. A. L. Gates, who will make things hum. Read his sale on the back page of this issue.

"Ain't Nature

Wonderful"

Mr. J. W. Palmer, one of the Record's strongest and best friends, who lives on the Crab Orchard pike, brought to this office Wednesday a sweet potato vine with an Irish potato growing from one of the roots, same may be seen while on display in the Record office windows.

You will have a rare opportunity to get what you want at the right price at the big executor's sale of the late Howard King on THURSDAY, OCTOBER 26th, at 10 A. M. Be sure and be there.

The best way to avoid a falsehood is not to tell it.

FARMERS' BUREAU

Organized Here Last Saturday With Over One Hundred Members

After an intensive drive throughout the county, lasting a week, a Farm Bureau with a membership of 106 was organized here Saturday afternoon, with G. E. Swinebroad as permanent chairman.

A. T. Sanders was elected President; Wm. Marshbanks, first Vice President and L. G. Davidson, Treasurer.

Mr. Swinebroad, who was ably assisted by a corps of local workers, deserves much credit for launching this important work and in perfecting an organization here. Mr. Geoffrey Morgan, of Louisville, Secretary of State Farm Bureau, was present at the meeting Saturday and lent valuable assistance in the work of organizing. A number of members of similar organizations in Lincoln, Boyle and Madison counties were also present and helped with some very excellent suggestions.

A meeting will be held here next Saturday, when several Directors from various parts of the county will be appointed. Farmers to a man are showing pronounced enthusiasm.

B. S. Mattingly, Sr.

B. S. Mattingly, Sr., 65 years old, died suddenly Monday morning at his home in Louisville, of acute heart attack.

Mr. Mattingly was born in Lebanon and had been in the live stock business practically all his life. He went to Louisville twenty-five years ago, and has been associated with the firm, Goodridge, Mattingly and Smith since that time.

He had many warm friends in Lancaster, who will be grieved to learn of his passing. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lela Elkin Mattingly, five sons and four daughters. Burial took place in Lebanon yesterday.

Tobacco Speaking

Judge I. H. Thurman, of Springfield, Ky., will address the tobacco growers at the Court House in Lancaster, Ky., on Monday, Oct. 23rd, at one o'clock P. M.

Judge Thurman is Circuit Judge of his district and a director of the Hurlley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association. He is a forceful speaker, and we urge all tobacco growers to hear him, members as well as non-members of the Association.

Our members are especially invited to come and hear him and hear the truth about your association, as he can answer all questions truthfully concerning it.

Non-members are invited to come and sign the contract as the closing date for signing is set for November 6th, and no contract will be accepted after that date.

L. L. Walker Chairman.

Flannery-Croutcher

The marriage of Miss Pearl Flannery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Flannery, of the Buckeye pike, to Mr. Joe Croutcher, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Croutcher, of this city, took place in this city last Saturday afternoon, Rev. E. R. Bourland being the officiating minister.

The bride is beautiful and very popular, while the groom is an energetic young man and is very popular.

Their many friends wish them a long life filled with happiness and prosperity as they journey through life.

"Billie" Ball Back

Friends of Billie Ball are glad to know that he has accepted a position with A. H. Bastin & Co., on Campbell street and is welcoming his old friends. No young man has more friends than Billie, nor is there a more accommodating or efficient clerk in Lancaster.

On Friday, October 27th, at ten o'clock A. M., on the Crab Orchard and Lancaster pike, one and one-half miles from Crab Orchard, Hughes & McCarty, the real estate men of Stanford are going to sell a nice 135 acre farm, subdivided, at auction, for Mr. G. W. Durham. If you are in the market for a good investment, be on the ground Friday, Oct. 27th.

Lost Tire

Lost on the new Danville Pike last Monday night one 30x3 1/2 Cooper tire on a Ford rim. A reward will be paid if returned to Glass B. Carrier, Lancaster, Ky., or this office.

With some people married life is a long dream of happiness that never comes.

GREAT ARMISTICE

CELEBRATION

Planned by Local Post of The American Legion

Dr. J. E. Edwards, Post Commander of the Helder Sanford Post No. 35, called an executive meeting of the executive committee of the local post last night to determine what steps to take in order that they may have a celebration in Lancaster on NOVEMBER 10th, that will surpass anything yet attempted by the local Legionnaires. All of the members of the committee were present except the representative from the Bryantsville District and this was considered one of the best meetings ever held. All chairman were present and gave a report of the work that they hope to have ready for the big "Armistice Day" and from all reports it will be a real gala day in Lancaster.

Commander Edwards announced after the meeting that things would be pushed to the limit and he especially stressed the necessity of every Legionnaire assisting and doing whatever they were called upon to do. See the big red bills that the publicity committee will have out in a few days and incidentally we wish to call your attention to one of the big things and that is the long wished for FOOT BALL GAME BETWEEN THE STANFORD HI SCHOOL AND THE LANCASTER HI SCHOOL. Make your plans now to visit Lancaster on Nov. 10th, and spend the day.

Book Notes

Have you a membership card to the Women's Club Library? If not, buy one at once—the cost is only one dollar per year, and will give you each week your choice of the two thousand books on the library shelves.

Have you interested yourself in the Children's section of the library? If not call and examine what is on the shelves. You will find the books that all children like. Begin with the "Harvard Baby Classes" and go down the list—enough to entertain all the boys and girls in town.

Are you reading and understanding modern fiction? If so you are leaping the new American literature. The following books are representatives of present day writing, and with others as good, are on the library shelves:—"My Antonio," by Willa Cather is one of the greatest American novels—read this if you read no other on this list.

"Three Black Pennies," by Hergesheimer is full of radiant color and romance and gives in full measure the law of inheritance, be it either good or evil.

Of course you have read "Main Street," and if you have read it seriously and studiously, then you have gotten the trend of the new movement in story writing.

"The Pride of Paloma" by Peter Kine begins with California in the days of the Spanish Grandees, but the later generation of 100 per cent Americanism is the gripping part of the story—the Japanese question is touched upon.

"Alice Adams" by Tarkington won the Pulitzer prize for the best story of American home life.

"If Winter Comes" by Hutchinson, has been the most read and talked about book of the year.

This list of half a dozen is only a mention of the new books in the library and newer ones are added monthly.

Do you know the rules of the Library?—books loaned for two weeks—the newest ones for one week.

There must be taken of all books. Please take a membership card.

Methodist Church News

The Danville district conference will meet at Richmond from October 30th to November 1st. Bishop U. V. W. Darlington, of Huntington, W. Va., will preside. Mrs. J. R. Abner and Mrs. W. A. Farnau were elected Sunday to represent the local church, with Geo. Spoonamore and Mrs. J. C. Williams as alternates. The pastor will attend the sessions.

The mid-week service is growing in interest and attendance, and the Sunday School showed an increase in number last Sunday. The Men's Bible class is planning for a real worth-while time in service and fellowship this year. Come and enjoy the hour with them.

The night services now begin at 7:00 o'clock, Epworth League at 6:15. If you do not worship elsewhere, come and be with us. You will always find welcome.

It will pay you to attend the big auction sale of the late Howard King on THURSDAY, OCTOBER 26th, at 10 A. M.

Diphtheria Spread

Alarming

Unless the people of Kentucky awaken immediately to the danger in diphtheria, the death rate from this disease will increase enormously this fall and winter, Dr. A. T. McCormack, state health officer, declared in an address delivered at Louisville.

The number of cases in the state at the present time, he added, already is in excess of that at the same time last year.

"There are now, as in the past," Dr. McCormack said, "three reasons why diphtheria is spreading so alarmingly. Doctors are not called soon enough, and persons with diphtheria give it to others before the disease is recognized; isolation is not complete enough during illness, and persons who have had diphtheria begin going out before it is shown by laboratory test that they are free of the disease. Diphtheria need never be fatal. If doctors are called early enough and anti-toxin administered persons suffering with the disease in sufficient quantities, recovery is certain. And anti-toxin is so cheap that it can be obtained by the process. The State Board of Health will supply it at reduced rates, and there is scarcely a county in the state which hasn't an arrangement by which absolutely indigent persons can obtain it free."

Seriously Burned

Mrs. Ed Arnold and daughter were seriously burned while visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Agee, near Hyntsville, last Tuesday. While sitting before the fire of an open grate, an explosion occurred, supposed to have been a dynamite cap accidentally thrown into the fire. While not necessarily fatal the burns are very painful, and but from prompt action on the part of those present the house would have burned, as fire was thrown all over the room.

Penalty to go on

All City taxes not paid by November 1st, will be added a penalty, so every taxpayers is urged to settle at once and avoid this additional expense. The city needs the money and it must be collected.

J. A. Bratton, City Marshal.

Cost of Horse Labor
Can be Cut Down

With the harvest season almost ended in Kentucky, farmers can cut the cost of their horse labor by economizing in the feeding and care of work stock during the coming winter, according to W. S. Anderson, a member of the animal husbandry staff of the College of Agriculture and a well known authority on horses. Only a small part of the average number of work animals will be needed on the farm between now and the time of early spring plowing. This form of economy is especially important at this time in view of the fact that the chief consideration of production and of operation.

"Work stock in the early fall months will do well with a third to a half grain ration and accede to a good pasture field. The grain can be gradually lessened until the animals are consuming only the roughage of the pasture which may be supplemented by stoves, straw or rough hays. If a shed can be provided so that the work stock can go into it to protect themselves from severe storms, they will do well the entire winter running at large in a boundary. As cold weather comes on and grass disappears, some suitable roughage must be provided. Access to a straw or hay stack or plenty of corn stover will enable the animals to go through in fair flesh. Some grain should be given, however, in the coldest and roughest weather.

"It is not necessary that idle stock be kept in stalls and fed like stock which is in the harness daily. Freedom of a field where plenty of exercise can be had and access to a reasonable amount of roughage is all that is necessary. This method of carrying off the big items of daily attending work stock through the winter such as feeding, watering and cleaning stalls. A big part of the grain feed also is saved by this method of handling the animals.

"Horses and mules that will not be needed for heavy road work for some months to come should have their shoes removed and if their feet are strong enough to bear up, they should be allowed to go without shoes from this time until spring work begins. A considerable item of expense can be saved in this way."

The president who gets his face on postage stamps need not be worried over what history will say of him. He will always be remembered as long as the stamps hold out.

67 TRAINS NEEDED

CO SOLD BY POOL

Magnitude of Biggest Burley Deal on Record Explained
By R. E. Beatty—Hogheads Would Reach Fifty Miles

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 11.—Some idea of the magnitude of the deal by which the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company take over practically all the holdings of the 1921 crop in the hands of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association may be gathered from figures given out by Warehouse Manager Robert E. Beatty, of the Lexington district, Wednesday.

Manager Beatty said that it would require 67 freight trains, of 50 cars each, to carry the 34,000,000 pounds sold, that the tobacco would fill 3,375 standard freight cars, and that, if the hogheads containing it were placed end to end they would reach for a distance of more than fifty miles.

Official figures from the department of agriculture at Washington, received in Lexington Wednesday show that the burley crop of 1921, not counting the association sales, averaged nine cents a pound more than that of 1920, as it brought 22.3 cents a pound, as compared with 13.37 cents a pound for the 1920 crop. This was paid in spite of the fact that the 1921 crop was inferior to that of 1920. According to the department report the increase was due to the movement to market tobacco co-operatively.

According to the report the average production per acre, in all parts of the burley district, was 655 pounds to the acre.

In a summary of tobacco markets from 1916 to date, just made public by the R. M. Barker Tobacco Company, of Carrollton, and distributed to the trade, house leaf sales show a gradual increase in prices from 1916 up to 1919 and including the latter year, when the apex of $32.66 was reached. In that year Lexington sold 64,101,712 pounds at an average of $33.46.

The market summary covers every known burley market and the figures by years are as follows:

Year	Lbs. Sold	Average
1916	265,429,825	$16.68
1917	254,581,587	24.78
1918	329,638,307	32.06
1919	309,339,021	32.66
1920	297,493,340	13.37
1921	57,600,273	22.31

Members of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association say that the average of the entire 1921 crop will not be known until the last of the Association holdings has been paid for and checked up. The house leaf warehouses are compelled by state law to report their sales monthly, giving a sworn statement of tobacco sold and prices received for it, but as their law applies only to auction markets, it does not require reports from the burley co-operative and, except for the month of February last, none has been made to the department. This was the first month of the association's activities and the tobacco sold by it during the month averaged $29 a hundred pounds, according to the report of Commissioner of Agriculture W. C. Hanna, who strongly commended the organization and said then that it was likely the growers in the association would receive more for their tobacco than the farmers who chose to sell outside the pool.

MOSQUITOES

By MYRTA ALICE LITTLE.

The reason why Cornelia Langley escaped to ex-chum's sister-in-law's aunt's camp at Mosquito lake in the early spring, mosquito-time, was—weddings.

Three chums had been married in February, March and April, respectively, and the three younger sisters had made a triple May wedding.

Ex-chum heard the vow, asked his hand, who phoned sister, who told aunt, and, with the assurance that Mosquito Lake Cottage was adequately screened from mosquitoes, Cornelia embarked on her pole-regaining expedition.

One warning followed her: "Those little pitchers. Three of them. Top shelf kitchen cupboard. Bronze especially. Been mended ten times."

The family who spent the summer on the island a mile across from aunt's camp had presented aunt with an unexpected rush of leaving, the priceless things had been forgotten, and aunt wouldn't have anything happen to them for the world, so if Cornelia would be particularly careful—

Cornelia would. "Protect them with m' life," she said. "Only thing that bothers me is thought of mosquitoes. If those screens aren't up to specification—"

Those screens weren't. Winter had worked havoc with them. Cornelia discovered that the minute she got to camp.

But sight of something in front of that bronze pitcher sent a grin clear across the girl's fat, rosy face. She stopped tearing her molasses-colored hair. It was a bottle of camphor, from those immortal swart enemy of the whole mosquito tribe.

Armed with this, Cornelia took herself early to the room above. Once asleep, she told herself, nothing but a mosquito could awaken her.

But the fourth day the battles with the buzzers had become decidedly monotonous. Even the camphor refused to live up to its reputation. Cornelia, realizing that for some reason best known to themselves, there were fewer berries, had opted to bed early, with the camphor bottle tucked to her heart, prepared to sleep her tornado-proof sleep.

It was nearly morning, but still dark, when she woke, awakened by the one thing that could wake her. She prepared to make a business of going after the beast—when—crash! bang! smash! from downstairs came a sound that struck terror to her uncompleted heart.

She hurried into a gorgeous dressing gown, snatched her flashlight, clasped the camphor bottle in steady hands, and with molasses hair streaming down her back, descended to investigate.

At the foot of the stairs—horror of horrors—lay the dismembered remains of that bronze lustre pitcher, the handle intact in the grasp of a perfectly presentable-looking member of the species that had snatched sisters and chums from Cornelia.

Cornelia fixed her eyes on that precious departed pitcher. "A burglar are you?" Her voice rose to a hoarse shout. "Can you conceal an explanation of your presence?"

"I can tell the truth about it," said the thing.

He told it. Attorney he was. Wanted a change. Opened house over on Island. Settled himself for comfortable weekend—food, fishing, no worries all day—everything fine. But, serene had ceased their screening. Cornelia sighed sympathetically, and sat down on the couch.

The man had tried smoke fires. No effect. Had finally gone out in his boat, suddenly belighted himself of Cornelia's ex-chum's aunt-in-law's cottage over on the mainland and of the generous bottle of camphor on the top shelf of the kitchen cupboard. He could get in the kitchen door—and—he did. Camphor bottle not in place. He had moved the priceless bronze pitcher, thinking the bottle might be behind it. Had held it gingerly, and all that, but one of those blamed mosquitoes had lit on his hand, and he'd battled it, and the pitcher had fallen out of his hands and left the handle.

"That camphor handle!" groaned Cornelia. "If it hadn't been for the mosquitoes—"

"If it hadn't been for your mosquitoes, you wouldn't be here talking to me," the attorney man retorted. "You say that nothing else ever wakes you."

"If it hadn't been for your mosquitoes over on the island, you wouldn't be here now, after the camphor bottle. Here, take some, but it won't do any good. But, that precious bronze pitcher—nothing will ever replace it, and I promised—"

"Balish!" grinned the man. "Mother gave those pitchers to the lady that owns this cottage. Doesn't care a snap about 'em. Got one more over on the island. Got my worms in it now. I'll go right over, dump 'em out and—they'll never know the difference—worms or owners."

"It's too good to be true," sighed Cornelia.

"My name's Ted Flanders. I know you. Seen you at three weddings within last four months."

So the pitcher having an alibi and Cornelia having recovered her peace and Ted being the son of the aunt of Cornelia's ex-chum's sister-in-law, also of ex-chum's husband, everything was very nice, and Cornelia and Ted had a wedding of their own that fall and lived happily forever after.

NEST EGG

The "nest egg" left in the hen's nest is an example of the first bank deposit you make. The hen's habit is to accumulate a nest full of eggs and then sit upon them until they hatch. Taking the eggs away as rapidly as she lays them interferes with her plan of procedure, and she will steal away and lay her eggs where they cannot be found.

The first deposit you make in this bank should never be diminished. Like the hen, you should strive to add to that first deposit until you have enough to accomplish some great purpose, and having accomplished that, you begin again.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE OF LAND

GARRARD CIRCUIT COURT
J. H. McQuerry, Adm., et al, Plffs.
vs.
Idea Lawson, et al. Defendants.

Pursuant to a judgment rendered at the August Term, 1922, the undersigned Commissioner will sell at public auction to the highest and best bidder at the Court House door in Lancaster, Ky., at 11 o'clock, A. M., or thereafter, on MONDAY, OCTOBER 23rd, 1922, the real estate mentioned in the pleadings and described as follows:

Tract No. 1: Lying in Garrard County, Kentucky, beginning at a stake in line near Mrs. Cook's house; thence with her lower line S. 28 1/2° W. 90 3/4° poles to a stone at mouth of old lane; S. 23 1/2° W. 35 poles to a sugar tree stump on a hillside now gone; thence N. 50 1/2° E. 24 1/2° poles to a sugar tree stump in corner field; thence S. 35° E. 19 1/2° poles to a stake near walnut stump, N. 74 1/2° E. 118 poles to two dogwoods, corner to old Kirkendall tract; thence with the line of the same N. 2 1/2° W. 29 1/2° poles to a stake 10 feet from two walnut bushes, 91 poles to the beginning, containing 90 acres.

This tract will be sold first, and the Commissioner will then sell the following tract:

Tract No. 2: In Garrard County, Ky., on the waters of Harrodsburg Lock and bounded as follows: Beginning at a dogwood, corner to Wm. Paynter and E. H. Cook; thence to a stake near a large white oak stump, a young hickory marked as corner; thence to the point of a knob, S. 24° E. 14 poles to a chestnut oak marked; thence S. 52° E. 10 1/2° poles to a young black oak marked; thence N. 75° E. 69 poles to two hickories marked on the top of ledge; thence N. 18 1/2° W. 26 poles to the beginning, containing 10 acres and 3 rods.

The purpose of said sale is to pay the debts against the estate of E. H. Cook, deceased, and to divide the residue of said proceeds among the parties, joint owners, as their interest may appear.

TERMS.

The sale will be made on a credit of six and twelve months, and the purchaser will be required to execute bonds with approved security, for the purchase price, payable to W. H. Brown, Master Commissioner, due in six and twelve months respectively, with interest at six per cent per annum from date until paid, having the force and effect of a judgment upon which execution may issue, and a lien will be retained upon the land until the purchase money is paid.

W. H. Brown, Master Commissioner of Garrard Circuit Court, I. L. Walker, Att'y. for Plffs. Capt. Am Bourne, Auct.

Freer Hand is Asked For Railway Officers

Richmond, Va.,—Stockholders of Southern Railway Company at their twenty-eighth annual meeting in Richmond on October 10th, unanimously adopted the following resolution which was introduced from the floor by Mr. Arthur C. Graves, of New Haven, Conn.:

"Resolved that we, the stockholders of Southern Railway Company, in annual meeting assembled, do hereby take this occasion to express our complete confidence in the corporate management and control of the railway lines of this system and of the ability of this railway company to furnish to the communities and the territory traversed by its lines a proper, efficient and economical transportation system at the lowest possible rates consistent with the proper maintenance and sound credit, when operated under the management of its president, board of directors and its officers; and that to this end we believe a larger degree of managerial responsibility and discretion should be returned to and vested in the president, board of directors and officers of this company free from the artificial restrictions of commission control; and further, that it is to the best interest not only to the investing owners of these properties and the security holders, but also of the public and shippers in the way of reasonable rates, and of the operatives in respect of a proper standard of wage, and for a just settlement of industrial disputes, that the initiative in all matters of operation and management should be left to the sound judgment and business experience of the operating officers of this company."

Messrs. J. Kerr Branch, of Richmond, Va., Adrian Iselin, Charles Lantier and George T. Shale of New York were re-elected its directors to serve for three years.

The annual report for 1921, submitted by President Fairfax Harrison on behalf of the board of directors was approved and resolutions were passed ratifying all the acts of the board of directors during the year.

28 Porkers Gain 1,030 Pounds in 30-Day Trial

Market hogs can be fed for its short time as a month and still make money for their owners, according to results obtained by W. F. Wilson, a Pulaski county farmer living near Nancy, who has just completed a hog feeding demonstration, which he carried out in co-operation with County Agent W. C. Wilson and some specialists of the College of Agriculture. Despite the fact that they were fed for only 30 days, the 28 purebred Hampshire hogs used in the demonstration made a profit of $29.25. This return of more than a dollar an animal is said to be exceptionally good in view of the short feeding period.

During the 30-day feeding period, the 28 hogs made a total gain of 1,030 pounds, or 36.8 pounds each, which was an average daily gain of 1.22 pounds for each animal. They weighed 96.2 pounds each at the beginning of the demonstration and 133 pounds each at the end of the 30 days. Seven and one-half hours of labor vaulted at 15 cents an hour were required to take care of the animals during the feeding period. They were sold for $242.55.

In getting the 1,030 pounds of gain on his hogs, Mr. Wilson fed 61 bushels of corn, 75 pounds of tankage and 1,500 pounds of skim milk. The pigs also had the run of a good red and sweet clover pasture. A total of 349.8 pounds of corn, or 6.24 bushels, 145.8 pounds of skim milk or 17 gallons, and 7.2 pounds of tankage were used. These feeds cost $6.34 when corn was valued at 75 cents a bushel, skim milk at 32 cents a 100 pounds and tankage at $4.00 a hundred pounds. The corn was fed in a self feeder but the tankage and skim milk were hand fed, the former being allowed only twice a week. The total cost for each 100 pounds of gain was $6.26. In view of the fact that his pigs had the run of a good pasture, Mr. Wilson probably would have obtained cheaper gains by feeding either the skim milk or tankage alone to balance the corn feed.

Before
Comes--

EXPECTANT mothers do not undergo useless suffering any longer, and baby's birth can be made gloriously easier. Mrs. Wm. Flach, 115 N. 12th St., Leavenworth, Kansas, says: "Mother's Friend" is the best help in the world for an expectant mother. I am the mother of three children and have found "Mother's Friend" best. "Mother's Friend" is externally applied about the abdomen, back and hips. It penetrates wonderfully, and in this way allows the muscles and ligaments to relax easily and readjust themselves to the changes during pregnancy and at child-birth. Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Bradford Regulator Co., B.A.-45, Atlanta, Ga., for free booklet containing valuable information every expectant mother should have. "Mother's Friend" contains no narcotics or harmful drugs. It is safe. There is no substitute. Avoid useless groans and plain oils. Start using "Mother's Friend" now—the sooner the better. "Mother's Friend" is sold at drug stores—everywhere.

W. C. T. U. for several years to have an all-day meeting in October, and these occasions are greatly enjoyed. The programs are always most interesting and instructive and prove very beneficial to the members as some of the State officers are usually present. The social hours are always most pleasant.

Campbell—Burnside

Saturday afternoon Miss Myrtle Campbell and Mr. Jacob Burnside drove to the home of Rev. Thompson, at Marksburg, and were united in marriage. The wedding was very quiet, as only the members of the families knew their intentions. The bride is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell, while the groom is very well known, as he has been connected with Becker & Ballard for several years. Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple left for Richmond for a visit with relatives. Their many friends are wishing them much happiness.

The "Yaller Dog"

By MORRIS SCHULTZ

(© 1922, Western Newspaper Union)

It was not until they were too weak to continue working that the mining party discovered what was the matter with them. Big Joe had been spitting blood all the morning.

"Guess I'll have to have them pesky teeth tended to in Dawson," he muttered, and collapsed on the tent floor.

It was scurvy. All the five of them were affected, but not "Yaller Dog," the white man with a touch of the ochreous in him, they said. This wasn't why they called him Yaller Dog. That name came after he had slunk out of the way when the party from Parrish's tried to jump the gold-claim, and the bullets were whizzing freely. The party from Parrish's decided to seek cooler regions; but Yaller Dog was a name that clung.

Still, he was only a boy, "Guess you was plumb scurvy, sonny," suggested Big Joe, laying a kindly hand on the fellow's shoulder. But no one trusted Yaller Dog after that.

And there they were sick with scurvy, all except Yaller Dog, whose colored blood must have told in his favor. He was not used to white man's food anyway, Tom Lessor said contemptuously.

There they were, sixty miles from nowhere, with winter coming on, too sick to wield a pick, too sick to move. "I guess it's our turn, Tom," said Big Joe. "Unless one of us could get to Gray's store, and that's pretty nigh forty miles on the Dawson road. And there's a devil of a storm brewing."

"Gray's got a sack of potatoes," said Jim Hurkian. "But what's the use of thinking of it? I guess we'd better rot here, rather 'n out in the snow."

"Where's Yaller Dog?" asked some one. But Yaller Dog, seen in the tent a few minutes before, had disappeared. "Curse him. I guess our claim'll be his for the picking now," said Tom.

"Oh, what's the sense of swearing?" muttered Big Joe. "You all knew what Yaller Dog was when that lot from Parrish's tried to jump our claim. Can't expect him to change his nature, can ye?"

There was a pattering on the tent. It had begun to snow.

The first snowstorm of the year in Alaska is apt to be as bad as any. It snowed three days and nights. The furious gale tore and battered at the tent. Inside, with snow heaped up about them, lay the five men, prostrate with the helplessness of scurvy. And outside, speeding toward Gray's, went Yaller Dog.

He was yellow, and he knew it. But that touch of Big Joe's hand on his shoulder had awakened something in him, something that beat down the thought of the gold claim that might have been his.

Late the second night Yaller Dog slipped into Gray's store with his news. He slung the bag of potatoes over his shoulder, and was gone before old Gray, who had expected him to wait, could find his dogs.

On he ran, covering the homeward trail. The snow came down like a curtain, the wind roared, and his eyes were soon closed by reason of the fine particles of ice about the lids. On the way to Gray's, Yaller Dog had had certain landmarks to guide him; but these existed no longer. Everything was covered with the soft blanket, in to which his feet slipped deeper and deeper.

He struggled and fought with a tenacity that had never been his. He was fighting his way by instinct against a gale that momentarily grew worse. Hours went by. The sack upon his shoulder weighed heavier than lead. The frozen potatoes dealt him blows like bullets at every movement.

At last he could go no further. Softly, insensibly, Yaller Dog slipped down in the powdery snow. He closed his eyes. Just one moment's sleep, and then up and away again!

The barking of the dogs aroused the somnolent men in the tent, sleeping their lives away under their blankets. The arrival of Gray's sleigh awakened only a momentary interest in them. Gray had his fire lit before he shook them to their feet.

"Boys, this is better than potatoes," he said. "It's the last bottle in the store." He poured out a generous half-cupful of lime juice for each. "And there'll be a rig along soon as the storm stops. By the way, where's Yaller Dog? 'Twas he warned me. Ain't he with you?"

"Ain't seen him," said Big Joe drowsily.

Old Gray checked an oath. "Say, that name you give him won't right, boys," he said. "I guess we're most of us yaller one way or another—only we don't git found out."

Radio on Motor Buses

Equipping motor buses with radio apparatus is a departure inaugurated by a transit company operating some 85 of these vehicles on the Pacific coast. (This innovation is the result of the keen rivalry of the bus concerns to obtain for their respective lines the patronage of the thousands of tourists who annually visit the western states. That the venture is practical has been fully demonstrated by extensive experiments. Possessing only a two-step radio short wave receiving outfit, the experimenters could hear concerts at a distance of 15 miles from the broadcasting station, and this despite the obvious necessity of employing a low antenna.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Farm and Home News From Over Kentucky

Curtis Montgomery, H. D. Parker, Guy Hulett and A. L. Cox, Carroll county farmers, are carrying on demonstrations with County Agent G. C. Routt and the extension division of the College of Agriculture at Lexington to show farmers in that part of the state the value of limestone and acid phosphate for boosting wheat yields.

Nelson county farmers are paying more attention to better houses for their poultry, County Agent T. L. Hill says. Three new houses have been built recently and plans made for several others.

More than 200 Jefferson county farmers and their wives have been taught the method of separating the laying and looper hens in their flocks this fall by means of 18 poultry culling demonstrations put on by County Agent F. E. Merriman.

The work of wiping out tuberculosis in McLean county cattle herds is going on with steady progress, County Agent Robert H. Ford says. Three hundred cows recently were tested in two weeks and seven reactors found.

More than 30 Union county poultry flocks already have been entered in the winter egg laying project which will be carried on over the state this coming winter by the extension division of the College of Agriculture, County Agent L. C. Brewer says. The project will be designed to show farmers how they can get more eggs from their hens by feeding them the right feeds and giving them good care.

ARE YOU A MEMBER of the great farmers organization that has just sold 54,000,000 pounds of Burley Tobacco in one sale to one concern?

THIS SALE PRACTICALLY CLEANED UP THE 1921 CROP AND AT VERY SATISFACTORY PRICES. WE ARE, THEREFORE, IN A VERY STRONG POSITION FOR HANDLING THE 1922 CROP AND OUR SUCCESS IS ABSOLUTELY ASSURED.

55,000 GROWERS stuck together this past season, and saved the day for all of you.

70,000 GROWERS are now banded together in the determination to bring about BETTER LIVING CONDITIONS for their families, and they make this

FINAL APPEAL TO NON-MEMBERS

To sign up before November 6th., and lend their strength to this great cause.

WE WANT EVERY TOBACCO GROWER IN THE ASSOCIATION

Our interests are identical. We seek to market tobacco in such a way that YOU will get the profit, instead of dividing it with speculators, pin-brokers and loose leaf warehousemen.

STANDING ALONE YOU CAN DO NOTHING.

UNITED, the banks of the Burley district, your merchants and the United States government, itself, will back you as they have backed us in the past year.

BEWARE OF FALSE PROPAGANDA being circulated by those who seek to continue living off your work, as they have lived in past years. Didn't they tell you that our holdings could not be sold? Their other statements are just as far from the truth.

RESULTS ARE WHAT COUNT, and the accomplishments of this organization during its first year of operation should convince the most skeptical that

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING IS THE SOLUTION OF THE TOBACCO GROWERS' PROBLEM. Therefore, we

RESPECTFULLY INVITE YOU TO SIGN

A contract and become a member, with all the rights and privileges of our present membership. Write this office for a contract at once, or secure one from your neighbors.

DON'T WAIT TO BE SOLICITED.

For we may not have an opportunity to visit every grower in the short time from now until November 6th.

BETTER TIMES HAVE COME—WON'T YOU HELP TO CONTINUE THEM?

Best Method for Curing Meat Will be Explained

Best methods for the home curing of meats will be explained to farmers in many Kentucky counties during the coming winter by means of meetings and demonstrations to be held by the extension division of the College of Agriculture, according to an announcement by Gladys Sellards, swine specialist of the college, who will have charge of the work. The meetings, which already have been started and which will continue until the first of February of next year, will be confined to the eastern and western parts of the state. Curing by use of salt and sorghum molasses, which is one of the oldest and most successful methods known, will be advocated through the meetings. At the present time, almost two-thirds of the farmers in the state cure their meat by the use of salt alone.

The method which will be advocated already has been tested out and found successful by a number of farmers. Twenty farmers in Lawrence, Boyd and Floyd counties last year cured their meat by the sorghum molasses method while more than 40 farmers in Marshall county found the same method highly successful when they tried it out last year.

Some of the points which Mr. Sellards will stress in the meetings are:

1. Be sure that the carcass is thoroughly cooled out as animal heat promotes rapid spoiling.
2. Trim hams, shoulders and bacon neatly. Fat edges do not make a good cured product. They should be rendered into lard or made into sausage.
3. Put a heavy layer of salt on each layer of meat, or bury the meat in salt, as it is being packed in a large churn or oak barrel.
4. Two days for each pound are required for a single piece to cure. That is, a 10-pound ham should cure in 20 days. A curing day is any one in which the temperature is above freezing.
5. After the meat is removed from the salt, brush off the crusty layer, wash in lukewarm water, hang up and let drip for 12 hours.
6. Smoke with hard wood, hickory preferred, for about six days or until the meat is an amber color.
7. Apply warm sorghum molasses to meat until all pores are filled.
8. Let hang several days, before making second application of molasses.
9. Wrap with heavy paper, then with muslin cloth, make insect proof.
10. Hang in dark, dry place with hook joints of hams down.

When predicting that the millennium will be here some day you are taking a desperate chance of being proven a preparator. It may come in the night.

Striking New Red Cross Poster

Chartered by Congress To Relieve and Prevent Suffering In Peace and In War At Home & Abroad

Riveting the attention of the beholder on the fact that the American Red Cross is chartered by Congress as an official volunteer relief organization the dome of the Capitol at Washington, upon which is superimposed a large Red Cross, is the central figure of a new poster for the Annual Red Cross Roll Call. The poster, which has been pronounced one of the most striking of innumerable representations of the famous dome, is the work of Franklin Booth, a New York artist of wide renown. It will be displayed throughout the country during the Roll Call period, Armistice Day to Thanksgiving, when the Red Cross membership for 1923 will be enrolled.

Junior Red Cross Praised for Work Influencing Peace

The advancing standard of the Junior American Red Cross made two outstanding gains during the last year—one in the field of domestic activity, which is rapidly linking up the schools with the Junior program, the other a gain of a dozen countries in Europe pledged to organize Juniors on the lines of the American organization. For this accomplishment the American Juniors earned the hearty endorsement of the League of Red Cross Societies for its "creation of an international spirit of human solidarity among young people with a view to preparation of a new civilization for peace."

The forthcoming annual report of the American Red Cross for the year ended June 30, 1922, will show 24,528 schools enrolled, with a total of 4,483, 845 pupils wearing the "I Serve" button of the American Junior Red Cross—the badge of unselfish service earned by each individual member through personal sacrifice.

In international school correspondence 736 classes and schools engaged in friendly communication with 123 schools in European countries, 100 schools in United States territories, 13 in South Africa and 10 in a miscellaneous list of foreign countries. The work in foreign fields in establishing playgrounds, school libraries, sewing and manual training classes, homes for war orphans, school reconstruction in devastated areas, encouraging community gardens and many other activities was financed through the National Children's Fund raised by the Juniors at a cost of $338,237.40. During the year $56,922.79 was contributed toward the fund, in which on July 1 there was a balance of $201,361.58.

An allegorical concept of the Red Cross as a peace-time ideal is employed by the American Red Cross in a new and striking poster for its Annual Red Cross Roll Call. Spread out before the heroic size figure is the outline of the United States with a Red Cross superimposed upon it while around its borders are sketched scenes depicting the chief activities of the Red Cross today—service to disabled veterans of the World War, disaster relief and promotion of the public health. The poster is the work of Lawrence Wilbur, a New York artist and will be displayed throughout the country during the enrollment of the Red Cross membership for 1923.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE OF LAND

GARRARD CIRCUIT COURT.

The Garrard Bank & Trust Co., Plff. Vs. Lancaster Flour Mills, Defendant.

Pursuant to a judgment rendered at the August Term, 1922, the undersigned Commissioner will sell at public auction, to the highest and best bidder at the Court House door in Lancaster, Ky., at 11 o'clock, A. M., or thereabout, on

NICE 135 ACRE FARM

Subdivided

At Absolute Auction

AT TEN O'CLOCK A. M.

Friday, Oct. 27th

This good farm—one of the best in that section—is located in the East End of Lincoln county, on the Crab Orchard and Lancaster Turnpike, one and a half miles North of Crab Orchard, a live business town on the L. & N. R. R., and one mile from the famous Crab Orchard Springs, a noted health resort. Pike runs through the farm and the old Richmond road, which is mostly gravelled, bounds two sides of it. Church and school at opposite corners of the farm and easy walking distance of Crab Orchard Graded School, no tax to pay—just outside. Level to gently rolling—just enough for natural drainage—and you can run an automobile all over it. Enough timber for general farm use, including fire wood, which is quite an item for all time to come. Fine water, well and cistern at house, everlasting springs and Dix River. Well fenced and cross-fenced. The owner has always prided himself on good fencing.

IMPROVEMENTS: Two-story six-room brick and frame residence, halls, porches, chicken house, double crib, fine hip roof stock barn, 32x64 feet and 16 feet to eaves, 35 feet to ridge, built of dressed oak, matched drop siding and painted, on concrete foundation, with galvanized metal roof and cupola.

The owner of this property lives in Chicago. He has instructed us to SELL for whatever it will bring. The strings are cut loose. It is up to YOU to say what it is worth and a deed is most certainly going to be made to you on the HIGH DOLLAR bid on sale day. It is located right, the right distance from town, surrounded by the best neighbors, etc. An exceedingly desirable piece of property. It will not take much money to "swing" this proposition. There is a $4,000 mortgage on this property, held by the Union Central Life Insurance Company, with about 18 years yet to run. The terms on the balance will be easy. Remember the day and hour—FRIDAY, OCTOBER 27th., at TEN A. M.

Biting Off Their Noses

The Attorney General of the United States rules that no foreign ship with liquor aboard can enter an American port. This is in accordance with one of the provisions of our prohibition law.

Whether that law is best for the country, or not, is a matter which each citizen must decide for himself. It is also a matter upon which public opinion is acutely divided.

But some of our foreign friends have taken umbrage at the ruling and have threatened a wholesale boycott of American ports. They intimate that American tourists will find it inconvenient to journey to Canada in order to take ship for a trip abroad.

Foolish bubble of irresponsible tongues!

They take it for granted that Americans cannot exist without flocking over to Europe and strewing their gold broadcast. Instead, they might with advantage to themselves reason thusly:

1. If other nations put into effect a shipping boycott of our ports there is nothing to prevent Americans from putting a financial boycott into effect against Europe.

2. America could exist very comfortably without any contact whatever with Europe.

3. European countries would find themselves mightily distressed if suddenly shut off from all financial aid from this country.

4. Rich Americans are foolish enough to spend their money abroad when conditions are normal. But when a foreign conspiracy is hatched up against our country it is quite possible even for people of wealth to line up behind the good old flag and tell all conspirators to go where it is warmer.

Talk sense, cousins. We are not all fools on this side of the Atlantic.

Travels of a Dollar

Consider the rounds of a dollar when spent at home.

The farmer receives it in exchange for produce he ships to the city markets.

He pays it to the grocer.

The grocer's wife must have a new gown, and it goes to the dry goods man.

That gentleman pays it to his clerk, and the latter hands it over to the shoe dealer.

Mr. Shoe dealer wants a new suit, and the clothing man gets it.

A car goes on the blink and the clothier transfers it to the garage man.

The garage man is a pious sort of a bird and drops it into the collection box at Sunday services.

Then it reaches the church treasurer, and he tickles the palm of the preacher with it, and the ministerial gentleman slips it to the milliner in exchange for a hat for Mrs. Preacher—or as part payment thereof.

Mrs. Milliner needs some face cream, and the beauty parlor or drug store gets it.

Then it goes to another grocer for foodstuffs, and the grocer hands it over to the farmer for produce, and the dollar starts off on another round of calls.

A sort of endless chain, you know.

But if the farmer had sent that dollar to a catalogue house where in heck would it be by this time?

Certainly not in the community!

Everything goes at the executor's sale of the late Howard King on Thursday, October 26th, at 10 A. M.

Church Notice

A two weeks' meeting will begin in this church next Monday evening at 7:15. Two services to be held each day during the time Oct. 30th. to Nov. 12th. Rev. S. S. Daugherty, of Harrodsburg, will assist the Pastor. He is a young man of unusual ability and will use no "Clap-Trap" methods only tell the old story of Jesus and His love as best he can.

The Ladies' Prayer Meetings will be held at the various homes on Thursday evenings instead of Friday as was done last week. The Men's meeting at the church again on Thursday evening.

On Friday evening at the church a social hour and refreshments for all members and those associated with the congregation.

On next Sunday morning at eleven o'clock the service will be one that will fit into the Program of the Christian Endeavor convention, especially suited to the young people and delegates to the Convention. In the evening of that day our services will be at the Christian church, the closing program of the Convention where we, together with that congregation are hostess to the Christian Endavorers.

We extend to the public a cordial invitation to attend all these services.

Baptist Church News

Our Sunday School attendance last Sunday was disappointing not only to the Superintendent, but to all who have the interest of the School at heart. Several teachers were absent from their classes with no provision made for a substitute. This works a hardship on the Superintendent, impairs the standing of the classes with the absentee teachers and lowers the spirit of the whole school. We have a splendid corps of teachers, and we want them each to know that their absence even for one Sunday creates a vacancy that is hard to fill. We are hoping for a banner attendance next Sunday.

The prayer meeting attendance was good last week—nearly 50, but we should have more, and will have when every member realizes that the mid-week meeting is as important as the Sunday services for spiritual growth and development. Our next study will be, "What Baptists Believe About Baptism."

The Juniors are doing faithful and constructive work under the splendid leadership of their President, Lillian Estes. They meet at 6:15 Sunday evenings. Parents and other senior members are invited to attend these meetings and encourage the Juniors by their presence.

The preaching services will be at the usual hours next Sunday. The morning topic will be "A Man Hunt." In the evening we will continue our study of world crises. The topic will be "The Crisis of the Cross."

No loyal member will absent himself from the services of his church at the appointed times unless hindered by causes he cannot control. An earnest invitation is extended to all to attend our services.

The Woman's Missionary Society, having postponed their September meeting during the revival, met Tuesday afternoon. As had been read by each member at home the whole time was very profitably given to the Bible Study, "The Ministry of Obedience," which was led by Miss Rebecca Williams, each member taking part.

The October program will be given next Tuesday afternoon. Every member is expected to be present.

The Sunbeam Band had a very interesting program Sunday afternoon, and in a business meeting following, much enthusiasm was manifested in planning to buy and dress a number of dolls to send to the Orphans' Home Christmas.

Barber

God in His Infinite Wisdom called Mrs. Clara Barker to depart from this life Sunday, October 8th. She was taken suddenly ill and only lived about one hour. All was done for her that loving hands could do, but God said, "No My hands are in this work," so when the shadows of the evening were stealing across the sky, her spirit took its flight to realms above.

She was all a true woman could be. She lived right and died trusting in her Lord. She gave her heart to God early in life, uniting with the Mt. Hebron Baptist church. She was 68 years, 9 months and 4 days old.

She leaves an aged husband and seven children and a number of grand children to mourn her loss.

Remember He said, all things work together for the good of those who love God, who are called according to His purpose.

Burial took place at the Mt. Hebron cemetery Monday afternoon, the services being conducted by Rev. I. W. Manley.

Card of Thanks

To the friends and neighbors who were so kind and thoughtful, during the illness and after the death of Mrs. Clara Barker, we wish to express our sincere thanks.

Mrs. Mattson Dead

Margaret Cleo Mattson, wife of Frank C. Mattson, died Oct. 4th, at her home, 1277 E. Grand Ave., Decatur, Ill., after a long illness—following an attack of influenza in January last.

Margaret Cleo Royce was born in Garrard county, Ky., May 27, 1892. She came to this state in 1906, and has made this city her home since.

She was married to Frank C. Mattson March 10th, 1911.

She leaves beside her husband, two children, Kathryn and William R., also her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Royce, one sister, Ruth Royce and three brothers, Cecil and Otto, of Decatur, Ill., and Dr. O. W. Royce, of St. George, Utah. She also leaves a host of friends as she was ever ready to promote any good cause. She was a devoted mother, a true and loving wife.

Her faith in Jesus was her comfort in her last moments.

We mourn not as those who have no hope. Our Father's precious promise soothes the broken hearts and bids us look beyond where our loved one waits in glory.

In Memory

In memory of our beloved mother, Mrs. W. M. Hogle, who departed this life Oct. 12th, 1921.

Just a year ago we stood by the open grave and saw all that was mortal of our dear mother consigned to the cold ground. Only those who have suffered this loss can realize what a time like this means. God has been lavish in His gift of so many good things; hundreds of stars adorn the sky, thousands of birds sing their carol and millions of birds sing bloom at our feet—but in all the wide world we have only one mother. How dark indeed would be this time of parting from mother had we no hope of meeting again. But we know that in the loss of our lost friend, she has gained a heavenly home. She is waiting and watching for the seven of us children whose youthful feet she guided over the stony path to manhood and womanhood; and may the memory of her teachings with the help of God so keep us in the path of right that when our summons comes we can say in the words of the grand old song, "Tell Mother I'll Be There."

Yes mother we hope to be there.

This is our constant prayer,

And join with you in song,

Among the snow white throng.

Dear Mother we've missed you so,

But God willed for you to go;

So we try to think it best

For we know you are at rest.

It won't be so long we know

Until we are called to go,

Then may we all unite again

In the land that knows no pain.

The many friends of Mr. Earl Teater, of Crab Orchard, are glad to know he is recovering from a severe case of typhoid fever. The family of Mr. Teater have recently moved from this county to Crab Orchard.

Miss Irene Medatue, Field Agent in Clothing, of the College of Agriculture, will give two Millinery Demonstrations in Garrard county. The first one will be held at the Buckeye School building October 26th., and the second at the Bryantville School building October 27th. These demonstrations are open to women and girls in the community. You are invited to be present. These demonstrations will begin promptly at ten o'clock each morning.

On Monday night, October 9th., friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Len Cobb, on the Lexington pike, the enjoyable occasion being their daughter, Miss Mattie Beulah Cobb's 17th birthday. Refreshments of cake and ice cream were served and games were played. They all departed at a late hour, wishing her many more such happy birthdays. Those who attended this delightful affair were, Misses Albene Sherrow, Elizabeth Dalton, Grace and Ethel Barnes, Lavorne Whitaker and Lucy and Nollie Turner, Messrs. Jasper and Clint Sherrow, Joe Edington, Odie Stunnet, Gene Scott, Critt and Arthur Turner, Floyd Tom, Lewis and Loyd Barnes and Oren Whitaker.

Thursday's social calendar was distinguished by a reception given from eight to ten o'clock in the Club rooms, in being the first fall meeting of the Woman's Club. The affair although quite informal was attended by about seventy-five members and the appointments were of the most attractive nature. The guests were received by Mrs. E. B. Bourland, president, Mrs. R. E. McRoberts, ex-president, Miss Helen Gill, vice president, and Mrs. Sam Haselden, treasurer. During the reception an excellent musical program was furnished by Miss Mary Davis, Mrs. Clinton Bastin, Mrs. Harry Tomlinson and Miss Wilder. Animated conversation further added to the pleasure of the evening. The rooms were transformed into a vision of loveliness by a profusion of fall flowers, artistically arranged, white cosmos being the favorite blossom, ferns, corn stalks and ivy vines. The club colors, green and white was used throughout the room. Green lamps in crystal and silver stands were also used on the mantles, tables and piano and baskets filled with the graceful white cosmos were beautiful.

The color scheme of green and white being carried out in the brick cream, cakes and omelets. The hosts for the evening were Mrs. W. M. Elkhott, Mrs. Carlton Elkin, Mrs. S. A. Walker and Mrs. Will Dickerson. The affair was indeed one of rare pleasure and was also distinguished by the charm and grace of hospitality for which the Club Women are noted. The enrollment of the Woman's Club grows larger each year, showing the interest of women in the better issues of the day. The regular meeting will be held Thursday afternoon in the club rooms. Professor Carl A. Lampert, head of the Department of Music, University of Kentucky, will give the opening lecture "Musical Appreciation," on their winter's program.

30,000 Bushels of Rye

For Cover Crop Being Planted in Christian County

More than 30,000 bushels of rye, most of which is of the Rosen variety, is being used by Christian county farmers this fall as seed for cover crops that are being planted to protect fields from erosion and leaching during the coming winter, according to R. E. Stephenson, soils and crops specialist of the College of Agriculture, who has just returned from a trip to that section of the state. Despite the fact that Christian county in the past has been one of the leading wheat producing counties in the state, the average of cover crops seeded this fall is expected to exceed that of wheat.

The seeding of cover crops on land that grew cultivated crops during the summer just past is now in full swing in practically every section of the state. The importance of this farm practice has been stressed during the last few years by the college extension division with the result that the average of such crops has far to be increased in many counties of the state during the present fall.

Christian county farmers believe that Rosen rye is especially satisfactory as a cover crop because of the vigorous growth which it makes. They also find that it stands out more than common rye, one bushel of it being equal to one and one-half bushels of winter rye. Although there are several other crops that are suited to prevent soil washing and plant food leaching during the winter, rye is proving to be the most popular one in Christian county. This is especially true where the crop is to be used for grazing or turned under in the spring. Many tobacco, corn, soybean and corn fields are being seeded to the crop. In cases where farmers wish to grow a cover crop for grain that is to be harvested next year, barley is proving most popular. The yield of this crop has been around 30 bushels an acre on land that produced only seven or eight bushels of wheat an acre.

Unsatisfactory yields obtained during the last few years from wheat, which in the past has served as a cover crop on many Christian county farms, have caused much of the increased use of rye this year. Wheat yields as low as seven or eight bushels an acre were reported in the county this year with the result that many farmers were compelled to take up the growing of some other cover crop that would give more profitable returns.

The unspeakable Turk appears to speak with unspeakable possibilities at times.

This is the time of year when the woman of the house can turn her last winter's hat into a new creation.

A close shave!

THE CHERRY MAN

By MOLLIE MATHER.

(1922, by Western Newspaper Union)

Sallie roamed disconsolately between the long rows of cherry trees. It was not natural for Sallie to be disconsolate; in fact, hers was a merry spirit indeed. But Aunt Maybelle Wicks was enough to try any one's patience. To go as relative companion to Aunt Maybelle, after her own father's death, had seemed at the time a providential opportunity. Continued companionship with Aunt Maybelle now seemed far from providential. Truly the fortune-favored lady exacted from her orphaned niece duty, to the last detail. Now, even the prospect of a long tour through unexplored country in Aunt's palatial car brought no pleasant anticipation.

Above all, Aunt Maybelle Wicks was a manipulator. Long ago some disappointed male had wooed Aunt Maybelle for her fortune, and not her face, and Miss Wicks had found him out in time to block his plan. From that day men were to her merely a dread necessity. Of course one had to lure them to look after fortunes, or to mow lawns. Now Aunt Maybelle was troubling her mind over the problem of a suitable chauffeur for the long trip planned, with only her tried companion as associate. Miss Wicks' friends roundly rejected the pleasure of accepting her invitation to join in the ride.

This smothering morning as Sallie walked between the red-jeweled trees, she was thinking how jolly the country might be with some youthful, congenial soul to enjoy with her its beauties.

A cherry hit her squarely on her upturned forehead. Sallie laughed, looking up into the branches, her mood of morbidness gone. Then Sallie sat up and stared. A young man swung lightly on a limb of the tree and gazed down with dark apologetic eyes. "I am so sorry," he said. "That one missed the pad."

The young man wore brown cotton overalls, and a disreputable straw hat. His broad brown arms reached higher for more cherries.

"Stranger hereabouts?" asked the young man. His pleasing country dialect reminded Sallie of a cousin taking a part; she smiled.

"Yes, a stranger," she replied. "Aunt Wicks and I are guests at the hotel until we can find a satisfactory chauffeur to take us on our way. The one we brought from the city, or rather, the one who brought us on from the city, left suddenly, because Aunt didn't like his staying out until 9 o'clock when he was off duty."

"I see," said the understanding young man. "Aunt is one of those people who own you, body and soul. If you work for them."

"She is," agreed Sallie emphatically. "But you don't work for her?" the young man said. "You are her niece."

"And," Sallie corrected, "her tried companion as well. We are planning a long trip now—her tone was wistful—"It might be such a very delightful trip, with the right people. Mom, take you know, and quiet little towns to stop at, nesting back against the green. Oh, I beg your pardon," said Sallie. It was really her own pardon she was begging for undue familiarity.

"I thought," she quickly added, "that you might possibly be able to direct me to a capable chauffeur."

"I guess," he remarked musingly, "that I could stand the old lady if you can. I'd like that trip myself. In fact, it's the very thing I've been wishing for to get away somewhere, see the world. Pretty dull around here I will apply."

Sallie was doubtful. "You have to be recommended," she reminded him. The pleasant young man grinned. "I will be. The Stratton will recommend me. Nobody better known around here than the Stratton. I've driven for him a lot in off times."

Sallie was jubilant. "Come right on to the hotel with me now," she said. "I must have my written recommendation first," the young man said, "and I want to clean up."

"Cleaning up" made a wonderful difference. Sallie could hardly believe that this neatly clad person with the smooth dark hair was the "cherry man" of the morning. The young man, in turn, was overwhelmed by the charming appearance. In her dignity of his "pink ghinham" acquaintance, "She was mighty nice this morning," he was thinking, "but now—"

"Jim" proved to be a courteous and desirable chauffeur. Even Miss Wicks could not withstand the charm of his engaging personality. Sallie often found herself relieved from duty as a companion. Jim was not only interesting but remarkably well informed.

It became a habit, after Aunt Maybelle had retired for the night, for the companion and the chauffeur to meet, as with one thought, upon the quiet veranda of some romantic old inn where they might be stopping. "Dearest," the cherry man said softly, "don't you know that there can be no parting between you and me? I have loved you, dear, from the moment I looked down from my father's cherry tree to see you beneath it. My father is Doctor Stratton, and I had returned from college, with my new diploma, prepared to help him in his profession. You must come and make for us a home in the big house that needs a woman. I need my wife, Sallie."

And though Sallie did not answer, there was no need.

Misses Jennie and Anne Higgins accompanied by Miss Reid and Mr. Garnet Tindor, spent last Saturday in Richmond.

Last Sunday was rainy day for the Sunday School at Mansie. There was a large attendance and a collection of $92.00 for S. S. extension.

The Parent-Teachers' Association gathered at the home of Mrs. John Tindor last Saturday and had an old fashioned picnic dinner and quilting. The mothers thus had a day away from home cares and children, which was a rest to all.

No Flirting in Korea.

Flirting is unknown among Korean girls. Indeed, an unmarried girl in Korea is so disgraced by even speaking to a male not of her own family that she often kills herself rather than endure the shame.

Can Fish Hear?

Fish have no ears but there is no doubt that they can detect sounds, as most anglers know to their cost. It is probable that they feel the vibrations which sound sets up in the water by means of a sensitive nerve that runs down each side of their bodies.

Bridal Superstitions.

No bride will ever make her own wedding cake if she desires to avoid misfortune, but if she eats the first slice, good fortune is assured. If a raveling is found on the bridegroom's suit, another girl takes him, while if his tie becomes awry, it is a sign that he loves another girl.

SURPRISE CONTESTS ARE VERY EFFECTIVE

Remarkably Good Results Shown in Western Cities.

Milk Dealer Delights to Be Surprised
With Dirty Product on His Wagon.
Especially When Results
Are Published.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Surprise milk contests—contests in which the milk sold by various dealers in a city is compared by taking samples occasionally without warning—have been very effective in improving the milk supply of many cities. Contests of this kind carried out with the assistance of the United States Department of Agriculture have shown remarkable results in a number of western cities. The bacterial counts and the total milk scores for the cities were made up from the results of tests of samples from each of the delivery systems.

In Long Beach, Calif., the average bacterial count in the first contest was 118,239; in the last contest it was down to 11,823. In the first the average score of the milk sold there was 71.56, and in the last it was up to 10.07. The milk sold in Riverside, Calif., improved its bacterial count from 101,500 to 8,522, and rose in score from 92.01 to 10.03. Los Angeles dealers, as a result of these surprise contests, made great improvement in the quality of the milk supply, bringing down the count from 84,100 to 12,000 and raising the score from 80.00 to 95.65. The figures of Portland, Ore., changed from 148,400 to 13,970, and from 76.10 to 92.52. The number of bacteria in a cubic centimeter of Seattle milk was brought from 64,124 down to 31,237, and the score was lifted from 80.50 to 88.24.

A milk dealer does not like to be surprised with dirty milk on his wagon, especially when the results of the tests are to be published in the local papers. When his score goes up he finds the number of his customers going up, when the bacterial count increases he finds an increase in the number of customers.

TO DESTROY CANADA THISTLE

First Step in Eradication Is to Prevent Seed Development—Disk in Early Fall.

The Canada thistle, also known as the cursed thistle, is one of the worst weed pests. It spreads by its root system as well as by seed. Its eradication entails a large amount of work.

The first step in eradication, say university farm men, is to prevent seed development. After the grain has been cut the infested land should be plowed deep enough to bring the roots of the thistle to the surface. Disking the surface cultivation in the early fall will prevent the growth of the plants, while plowing later in the fall will expose the roots to the action of frosts.

If the plant persists after all this punishment, as it probably will, a three-year rotation of grain, clover and corn or some other cultivated crop will furnish the knockout blow. Reinforcement can be prevented by a repetition of the rotation.

ALFALFA CROP OF MANY USES

Leads as Forage; Unsurpassed as Hay; Has High Carrying Capacity as Pasture.

No forage crop cultivated in the United States is used successfully in so many ways as alfalfa. It is to be seen a perfect forage than any other crop grown in this country. It is unsurpassed as hay for general feeding and has a high carrying capacity as pasture. With proper handling good results can be obtained with it as a soiling crop. It makes excellent silage and when ground into meal is a good and easily handled feed. Alfalfa is so highly regarded as forage that some persons have attempted to create a demand for it as human food. Enthusiasts have tried to show that it has medicinal value. However, it cannot compete as food with other staple crops and, so far as known, it has no special medicinal properties.

Alfalfa is not only valuable as a forage crop, but also as a soil improver. It is not well adapted to short rotations, but the cropping plan on most farms can be arranged so as to handle the crop conveniently.

Stump grass, which grows in Russia, has a curious way of sowing its seed. It forms a coil of fiber which twists on wet days, thus working its way into the ground. When the weather is dry the coil untwists, but remains fixed in position owing to a bar at the end under the soil.

Friends an Expensive Luxury.

Friends are an expensive luxury; and when a man's whole capital is invested in a cooling and a mission in life he cannot afford to keep them. The costliness of keeping friends does not lie in what one does for them, but in what one, out of consideration for them refrains from doing. This means the crushing of many an intellectual germ.—Letter from to Brandes, 1870.

WAR GASES PROPOSED TO ERADICATE PESTS

Some of Them Promise to Be Quite Efficient.

Particularly Useful When Heavier Than Air and Used on Burrowing Rodents and Insects in Stored Products.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Deadly gases that were developed for war purposes are now being tried out by the United States Department of Agriculture as a means for destroying noxious birds, animals, and insects, some of them promise to be useful when applied under proper conditions, particularly those that are heavier than air and can be used on burrowing rodents, and possibly subterranean insects and pests in stored products.

The most recent proposal is to use gas to kill destructive birds that congregate in marshes. In the coming fall the biological survey, in cooperation with the chemical warfare service, is planning to make a trial of the method on blackbirds in the Imperial valley of California. In that region these birds are said to do at least $50,000 worth of damage to the milk crop each year. Because of their feeding habits it is impossible to destroy these birds with poisoned baits, but, as they roost on the reeds in the marshes, it is thought that they can be killed by a gas cloud at night when the wind is favorable. The blackbirds are migratory and return to the same places year after year. It is thought that a big killing in a certain locality will probably free it of the pests for many years.

Arrangements also are being made by the biological survey with the chemical warfare service for investigating the possibility of using poison gases on such burrowing rodents as rats, prairie dogs, ground squirrels, and wood chucks.

Entomologists of the department have already worked in cooperation with the War department in testing various gases on insect pests of growing plants and those that infest stored grain, but it has not yet been found advisable to recommend anything to take the place of hydrocyanic acid gas or carbon bisulphide.

The serious disadvantages of many of these new gases is that they are dangerous or very irritating to men, horses, and mules, and require the use of masks and great care in handling.

CORN SHELTER EASILY MADE

Both Lever and Cut-Away Portions of Block Are Studded With Protruding Spikes.

A homemade corn shelter is just the thing where only a little corn is to be sheltered. A block of wood with a sloping notch cut from one end is mounted on three legs. A lever is attached to the block. Both lever and cut-away portions of the block are studded with spikes driven so that the heads protrude about half an inch. The box that catches the corn is fastened to the legs of the shelter.

Homemade Corn Shelter.

Attached to the block. Both lever and cut-away portions of the block are studded with spikes driven so that the heads protrude about half an inch. The box that catches the corn is fastened to the legs of the shelter.

KEEP HOE GOING IN GARDEN

Success of Vegetable Crops Depends Greatly on Cultivation—Plan to Keep Weeds Out.

Much of the success of vegetable culture depends on keeping the hoe going. Never miss a chance when the ground is in a semimolten condition. That is just the best time for the work. Keep stirring as deeply as possible between the rows of all young growing vegetables to open up the soil and lay it ready for the action of sun and air. By this process weeds never get a foothold, far less reach the seedling stage. If this plan is persisted in one can almost see the vegetables growing. It is not hard work, and it is well worth the time it takes.

SUMMER WEATHER AND FLIES

Many Calves Can Be Saved If Given Careful Attention and Kept in Shaded Pens.

Hot weather and flies ruin a great many calves. It is advisable to protect the young animals very carefully during the fly season. Spring calves are never allowed by some breeders to pasture the first summer, but are kept in shaded pens away from the heat and flies. Fall calves, likewise, are not allowed pasture during the hot days, but are turned out at night into small paddocks or exercise pens. Unless the calf is getting plenty of grain, washy grass may do it more harm than good.

Fayette Boy

Starts Uncle in Purebred Hog Business.

A good example of how junior agricultural club work gets adult farmers, as well as country boys, interested in purebred live stock and better methods of doing things on the farm is to be found in the experience of Clifton Ware, a 11-year-old Fayette county boy, who is one of the charter members of a pig club organized in the spring of 1921 by County Agent W. R. Gabbert and the extension division of the College of Agriculture. The pig bought for $20 from Tom Powers, Crittenden, by Clifton at the time he became a member of the club already has returned him $70 and in addition he has the original gilt, four boars and one sow. His uncle, Lester Barnaby, with whom he lives, who is now an enthusiastic and successful purebred hog raiser, says, "If it hadn't been for Clifton, I would have thought of being a Poland China breeder."

The business of raising purebred pigs began in earnest for young Ware this last spring when his pig farrowed nine little ones. Three of the gilts from the litter were sold to other club members for $15 each, while one of the boars was sold for $25 to head a Poland China herd near Jackson, Ga. With the mother sow and four boars and one gilt from her first litter remaining, Clifton added another gilt costing $18 to his herd and at the present time has the foundation for a good start in the purebred hog business. That he already is meeting with success in his work is shown by the fact that he has won cash prizes on his pigs for the last two seasons at the Blue Grass Fair.

Clifton's uncle, Mr. Barnaby, became so interested in the work of his nephew that he decided to enter the Poland China business. Soon after Clifton made his start, Mr. Barnaby purchased five pigs and at the present time has a herd of 51 hogs after selling eleven. His experiences so far with purebreds have made him enthusiastic about the way they respond to good feed and care by putting on weight. Practically all the hogs in his herd carry the blood of prominent Poland China sires and dams.

The Old Maids' Wishes

By MYRA C. LANE

Old Mr. Richmond had been very considerate, the three maiden ladies agreed, as they went along the road to church. He was not going to turn them out of their home, though he had bought it, and the rent he was charging them was almost a nominal one.

It was hard that they should have had to sell the old homestead, but it would pass into other hands after their death, and they needed a little ready money, owing to the slump in Miss Alice's investments.

Miss Alice was nearly sixty; Miss Jill was fifty-two; Miss Della, the baby of the family, was well, younger.

Miss Della had always been the baby. Miss Alice and Miss Jill had always known that they were cut out for old maids, but they had hoped to find a husband for Miss Della. Even now, at—well, at her age, she had a sort of girlish look; she was just the kind to make a splendid wife, and at one time Mr. Richmond had seemed quite taken with her. But that was years ago, and there had been some little disagreement—nobody knew what—and he had stopped calling, though he and Miss Della had always remained friends.

Mr. Richmond was not really old. He was in his early fifties, perhaps. It was a pity. But all that was dead and gone, and here were the three maiden ladies walking to church in the bright sunshine.

"Perhaps we might have ordered things better, Alice," said Miss Jill. "Have you been reading that book of mine about being able to control life by just sitting down and wishing?"

"Wishing? What a crazy idea!" exclaimed Miss Alice. "Hush, how do you know you'd wish for what was best for you?"

"What would you wish for?" asked Miss Jill. "Oh, I forgot. I spoils it if you say what your wish is. But I know what I'd wish for."

"I know what I'd wish for," said Miss Alice. "What would you wish for, Della?"

"I think I know what I'd wish for," said Miss Della, blushing.

"They walked on to the little church. After the service they met old Mr. Richmond, with his dog, and he accompanied them along the road.

"Sure there's no ill feeling about the cottage?" he laughed.

"I'm sure there isn't," said Miss Alice. "You've been most considerate, Mr. Richmond."

"Yes, indeed," echoed Miss Jill.

"They fell back, to allow Mr. Richmond to walk with Della, a pretty little maneuver. The two elder ladies had always given place to the sister whom they doted. They saw the two walking along the road together.

"I do wish it had come off," sighed Miss Alice.

"Is it too late?" asked Miss Jill.

"The afraid so," Miss Alice answered. "That was ten years ago, and they've been such good friends ever since. Two good, my dear."

"They did not rejoin Mr. Richmond and their sister until they reached the cottage."

"Won't you come in and have dinner with us?" asked Miss Alice.

"No, I positively must be getting back," answered Mr. Richmond. "I— I— He glanced at Miss Della, who was blushing like a peach. "Your sister and I have—hum—promised to marry each other," Mr. Richmond said.

Miss Alice and Miss Jill took Della in their arms, and there followed those tears that elderly maiden ladies reserve for such occasions. Then there was handshaking.

"I'm a lucky fellow," said Mr. Richmond. "As a matter of fact, just between ourselves, that's why I bought the cottage. Knew I'd never get Della out of it any other way. But, of course, we shall insist on your all staying with us. Home, Bob!"

He whistled to his retriever, which went scampering off beside him.

"Dear Della, I am so happy!" sighed Miss Alice.

"And so am I," said Miss Jill. She started. "Why, it's my wish!" she exclaimed.

"What did you wish, my dear?"

"I wished Della to have a sweet heart. What did you wish, Alice?"

"I wished you both to have your wishes," Miss Alice answered. "Did you wish, Della, darling?"

Della was crying. "Oh, yes, yes; but mine was such a selfish wish," she sobbed. "It was all for myself and not for you."

"What was it, dear?"

"I wished to have—have a dog!" Della sobbed.

No Object of Sympathy.

"Are you receiving many visits from politicians?"

"No," said Mr. Coddles. "I've painted the old home place, built a new barn and bought a big motorcar that stands out in front most of the time when daughter's not using it. I guess the candidates think I look too prosperous to put in half a day hearing them tell me I'm a downtrodden tiller of the soil."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Largely Guesswork.

"How do you tend to flatter along?"

"I'm all at sea," replied Mr. Grumpson. "When a young woman of this sort makes a remark to me I don't understand what she's talking about and I don't know whether to reply, 'Absolutely' or 'The very idea!'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Farm Short Course To Open November 1

The first term of the annual two-term short course in practical agriculture offered to farm men and boys of the state by the College of Agriculture will open Nov. 1st, according to an announcement by Thomas P. Cooper, dean of the college. Almost 50 subjects including a variety of soils and crops, livestock, entomology, farm economics and horticulture will be offered for study. The instruction is to be given by members of the regular college faculty. The first term will end Dec. 21st, while the second term will open Jan. 2, and continue until Feb. 24th. Either or both courses may be taken.

Some of the subjects which will be given attention in the soils and crops courses include soil fertility, soil physics and management, farm crops, plant disease, gas engines and tractors, sanitary equipment for the farm and hygiene and sanitation. Under these various heads, the students will study why soils differ in producing power, how poor soils can be made to produce larger crops, what commercial fertilizers should be used and how, how soils have been formed, the manner of planting different crops, methods of controlling weed, orchard and garden crop insects, stationary gas engines and tractors, and water supply and sewage disposal systems. In the livestock courses, the breeds of livestock and the judging of them, the principles of feeding, beef production, sheep and pork production, the breeding of farm animals, farm dairying, dairy manufacturing, farm hatching poultry production and diseases of livestock will be studied. In the horticulture and beekeeping will receive particular attention in the entomology courses, while the farm management and cooperative marketing will be among the subjects offered in the farm economics courses. The home orchard and fruit garden and the farm vegetable garden will be stressed in the horticulture course.

Grain Fed Cattle Paying Farmer More Than Feeders

Grain fed cattle at the present time are selling at prices well above those being paid for feeders, according to Wayland Rhoads, beef specialist of the College of Agriculture. This is a good guide for cattle men and indicates that it may be more profitable to feed steers cut or shucked corn for about a month or six weeks longer while they are still on grass instead of letting them gain what they can on grass alone and then selling them as feeders. On the other hand, the farmer who is going to keep his steers and sell them as fat cattle this winter must be on guard as soon as the first freezes come and pastures get short to prevent costly shrinkage in his cattle. Feeding should start as soon as possible after the first heavy freezes of the year.

A ration for a feeding period of from 100 to 140 days that has given good gains in many feed lots of the state as well as on the college farm is made of cottonseed meal, broken ear corn, silage and all the hay or straw that the steers will clean up. A daily feed of this ration for each 1,000 pounds of live weight should average about three pounds of the cottonseed meal, 45 pounds of the silage and 10 pounds of corn. However, the amount fed at the beginning of the feeding period is less than this and is gradually increased until the animals are getting even more than this amount near the end of the period. In a long feeding period of more than 100 days, the corn is left out of the ration for the first 60 days.

A good ration for farmers to feed who have no silage and who wish to feed for a shorter period is made of cottonseed meal, clover hay, broken ear corn and fodder or straw. A daily feed of this ration for each 1,000 pounds of live weight average about two pounds of cottonseed meal, six pounds of clover hay and 12 pounds of corn with all the fodder or straw that the steers can clean up. These amounts are reached by gradually increasing the feed. If a full feed of clover hay is fed with corn, good gains will be made without the cottonseed meal. Cheap gains can be made by feeding cottonseed meal at the average rate of about three pounds a day for each 1,000 pounds of live steer and allowing a full feed of shuck corn.

It's a fact, though, that if the Turk starts up a holy war it will be an ugly affair.

RED CLOVER MILDEW SERIOUS THIS YEAR

Severe Infestation Has Appeared in Several States.

Department of Agriculture Anxious to Secure Reports From Various Sections, Particularly as Affecting Horses.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The first severe infestation of mildew on red clover in this country has appeared east of the Mississippi from Wisconsin to Georgia this year. This mildew makes the plants look white. Last fall it was quite prevalent in the South and is worse there this summer. The amount of harm it does is a question yet unanswered. Some reduction in the yield of hay is due to it.

Turning Under Red Clover to Improve the Soil.

but this is not great. There are rumors, however, that the eating of mildewed hay causes inflammation in horses' mouths. The Ohio experiment station reports a quotation from a German writer stating that mildewed clover hay causes stomatitis in horses.

Unfortunately the exact identity of the mildew on American red clover has not yet been determined. When American seed is planted side by side with European seed, the mildew appears on the plants from American seed while only a trace of mildew appears on those from European seed. The United States Department of Agriculture would be glad to get reports regarding the mildew in different parts of the country. It is particularly interested in learning if horses eating the mildewed red clover hay are affected.

EFFICIENT THRESHING HINTS

Uniform, but Not Too Rapid Feeding
Constant Speed of Machine and Adjustment.

A few points to keep in mind for efficient threshing are: uniform feeding, not too rapid feeding, constant speed of the machine, and proper adjustment. Many times when a threshing crew is anxious to complete its job the work is rushed through at considerable loss to the owner of the grain. Greater personal interest in each job usually makes the small threshing outfit more desirable than the large one. With the large outfit a part of the crew is usually a long distance from home and they do not have the same interest in the work as when the entire crew is made up of men on adjacent farms.

CONTROL OF TUBERCULOSIS

Whole Areas Should Be Cleaned Up Rather Than Scattered Herds to Be of Permanence.

Tuberculosis in cattle cannot be kept under control, much less eradicated, if grade animals and single cows owned by families are omitted in the clean-up of any territory. Whole areas, therefore, like townships and counties, should be cleaned up rather than scattered herds. If the work is to be of permanent value and handled in the most economical way, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

DAIRY COWS ARE IMPROVING

In 45 Cow-Testing Associations in Nine Western States, 9,484 Make More Than 40 Pounds.

Dairymen in the 45 cow-testing associations in the nine western states now own 9,484 cows that have made more than forty pounds of butterfat in a month. Not many years ago a 10-pound cow was a rarity. There is much room for improvement, however, in the general run of herds in all parts of the country, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

ROAD IMPROVEMENT YOUNG

Eighty-Five Per Cent of American Highways Are Yet to Be Improved in Some Way.

While highway improvement has made tremendous strides in the United States in recent years it is still in its infancy. Eighty-five per cent of American roads are yet to be improved. It is not now so much a question of raising the money required to build good roads as it is the problem of spending wisely the large sums available in every state for this purpose.

Mrs. A. J. Rice spent a part of last week in Lexington. She was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carmon and Mrs. Griffith.

The sale of Mrs. Georgia Arnold, which transpired Tuesday of last week was fairly well attended. Everything sold for high values. Capt. Am Bourne was auctioneer.

Mrs. Ben Hughes, of Lancaster and Miss Hayne West, of Lexington, spent the week-end with Miss Susan K. Sutton. Miss West continues her visit with Miss Sutton and other relatives of this community for an indefinite time.

A very enjoyable day was spent Tuesday, Oct. 3rd, at the home of Mrs. Ham Aldridge on Lexington pike in honor of her father, Mr. Leonard Pollard's 72nd birthday. A bountiful dinner was served. The number present was about 43. The guests took their leave wishing Mr. Pollard many more happy birthdays.

The pie supper at Rice Academy last Saturday night was a financial success, having raised $40. Only a few were present but those few were large contributors. The teacher, Miss Mrriman was called away at the supreme moment and could not be present. The affair fell into the hands of her appointee, Mr. Center, and was nicely managed. Every one present had a good time. Mrs. Ernest Gosney contributed an Angel Food cake, which was sold for $27.00, more than half the proceeds of the supper.

CRITICS AIDING DAIRY INDUSTRY

Discussion of Bovine Tuberculosis in Relation to Milk Supplies is Big Benefit.

PRODUCTION SHOWS INCREASE

Many Towns Adopt Regulations Requiring Tuberculin Testing and Milk From Tester Herds Brings Higher Prices.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

That the free and frank discussion of bovine tuberculosis in its relation to milk supplies benefits rather than injures the dairy industry is shown by observations of the United States Department of Agriculture. When the work of freeing dairy herds from tuberculosis on a wide scale was undertaken several years ago, critics advanced the belief that the slaughter of tuberculous cattle would result in a milk famine and that publicity calling attention to the disease among dairy cows would hurt the dairy business.

Increased Milk Production.

The criticisms received careful consideration, but were not permitted to interfere with the constructive program of tuberculin testing and freeing herds from the disease. The soundness of this policy is shown by the following figures: During the period July 1, 1917, to July 1, 1922, 175,000 tuberculous cows were destroyed. Instead of a milk shortage there has been a remarkable increase in both production and consumption of milk and dairy products. Last year, 1921, milk production in the United States aggregated nearly 50 billion pounds, a noteworthy gain over the previous year. Production of butterfat likewise increased. In 1921 alone, milk cows increased 343,000, which is a figure nearly twice as great as the slaughter of tuberculous cattle during the entire five year period.

People Use More Milk.

Several hundred towns have issued regulations requiring tuberculin testing, and apparently with inspired faith in the safety and value of milk as a food, people are using more of it than at any time in the past. Frequent instances are reported to the Department of Agriculture in which parents place liberal milk orders with owners of tuberculin-tested herds a considerable distance away, although they could obtain milk from untested herds much more conveniently and at a lower price. Thus, in spite of various objections to the free discussion of tuberculosis eradication problems, the evidence shows that the benefits outweigh the doubts and fears.

MISTAKE WITH BEEF CATTLE

Many Producers Handle Cows in Same Manner as High-Producing Dairy Animals.

The function of beef cattle is to convert cheap roughage into a product that can be utilized by man. Many men entering the business of beef production make the vital mistake of handling their beef cows in the same manner that a high-producing dairy herd is managed, and because they fail to realize a profit, condemn the beef business generally. The same thing would happen, however, to the dairy business if dairy herds were subjected to the conditions necessary for profitable beef production. The only difference is that few dairy herds are ever placed under these conditions.

In managing a herd of beef cattle, the overhead expense in the form of labor equipment and concentrated feeds must be kept at a minimum if a substantial profit is to be realized.

TO ESTABLISH COLOR GRADES

Samples Are Being Submitted by Beekeepers to Establish Rank of Extracted Article.

Samples of honey are being received by the United States Department of Agriculture from beekeepers in all parts of the country in connection with the work of establishing reliable color grades for extracted honey. A new type of spectrophotometer will be used in this work, which will be done by agriculturists of the department in cooperation with the division of grades and standards of the bureau of agricultural economics.

NINA SCHOOL NOTES

Mr. Baird was a visitor at school Monday.

Mr. Abney was in town Saturday on business.

Miss Sunbeam Rubie spent Saturday in Berea and Wallaceton.

An ice cream supper will be given at the Nina school house Friday evening at seven o'clock.

Walker and Nina Schools played ball Friday afternoon. The score was 4 to 2, in favor of Nina.

Miss Gladys Chance, who has been out of school on account of a sore foot was able to be with us Friday afternoon.

The Sunbeam Band met last Friday with a large attendance. A number of new members were added to the organization.

The Philadelphia and True Blue societies gave an interesting program together Friday afternoon. Quite a number of visitors were present.

You have our thanks. They cost nothing.

Thought for the Day. Some people work themselves into a frenzy over something they will never have to face.

Old Sumptuary Law. The wearing of gold lace was prohibited to women under the old blue laws of Massachusetts.

"Hemeralopia." The state of being able to see in the dark is known as hemeralopia, or day blindness. A person who suffers from this may be known as hemeralope.

To Make Mirror Shine. Here is an excellent way to make the mirror sparkle. Add sufficient cold tea to whitening to make a paste; first rub the mirror with a warm, soft cloth, then rub the paste on the mirror and polish with tissue paper.

Versatile Cocoa Tree. The cacao tree is an evergreen and bears fruit and flowers all the year round, but the usual times for gathering the fruit are June and December. Chocolate is made from the seed or beans. When oil is extracted it makes cocoa butter, and the residue is ground and marketed as cocoa.

Forest Fires Costly. Every year forest fires in the United States destroy enough timber to build an entire city the size of Washington.

Right in Her Line. She was in high feather, as she had succeeded in securing a "plus four" man to take her around. "Do you like a high tee?" he inquired at the first tee. "Rather, George," was her enthusiastic reply. "Let's make it saucy and bacon!"—London Answers.

Law That Never Fails. Short measure in the market-place may slightly increase the bank account for the time being, but will not in the long run. For out of human experience came the admonition: "With what measure ye mete, the same shall be meted unto you." Men are finding this so today.—Girl.

First Public Employment Bureau. Ohio was the pioneer in the movement for free public employment offices in the United States, instituting them in 1880. Such agencies originated in France, where in 1848 one was established in each of the communes of Paris. The first bureau in England was opened in 1885.
